Right: Michael Souter's, "Me" work on paper, 32" x 40", mixed media, 2006"

MICHAEL SOUTER's work is aggressively narcissistic; the focal point of the piece is the text "ME", printed backwards, as the letter 'E' streaks across the paper. Deconstructed layers covering egomaniacal text add to his take on self-identity.

"ID Please"

An exploration of identity and self-expression.

Works by Lisa Ferguson, Hong Suk Lee, Joyce Lee, Jane Maxwell, Michael Souter, and J. Matthew Riva

July 12 - August 10, 2007

Opening reception: Thursday July 12, 6-8pm

Driver's licenses, passports, social security numbers - you won't get very far without government-issued identification. But how do these society staples hold so much personal information yet say nothing about who we really are?

Heidi Cho Gallery is pleased to announce "ID Please," a group show that explores the identities and self-expressive processes of six different artists.
